PANPEPATO

December 10, 2008

Panpepato is a lovely little shop that faces Parco Solari, a small but very child-friendly park in Milan. This tiny space overflows with trendy clothes, cool jewelery, scarves, hats, bags - anything but shoes! It is the creation of Martina and Giulia who, after a degree and a few years behind a desk, decided to make their lifetime dream come true and open a shop. This shop is not ordinary in that it sells the products of over 50 artisans, making everything you buy original and often unique. They also stock clothes from small young producers like skunkfunk and Lo Spaventapasseri.
Next to the women's collection of clothes and accessories they also sell baby and children's clothes. They are all handmade by Monica and Roberta (both WAHMs) in a simple timeless style with nice colourful fabrics and often decorated with big matching fabric-covered buttons. They do not normally have a huge selection in stock, but if you see a style you like you can pick the size and the fabric and they will have it done for you at no extra cost.
The shop is not easy to spot, so look out for a pink wooden bench - it's their sitting room and on sunny days many friends and locals alike stop by for chat. There is a good chance you'll find me there with one or two of my children. Why? Because Martina is my sister!

-Michela

Category: Cities,Fashion,Fashion & Accessories,For Kids,For Mums,Milan

MICHELA | 1 COMMENT