

MARLOW, 10 WEEKS OLD

January 23, 2013

My baby girl is 10 weeks old already! I can't believe how quickly ten weeks has passed. I spent the weekend looking at old photos (I'm hoping to make a Bob Books photo book for 2012) and came across all the photos of Marlow's birth and the first weeks of her life. Those magical, blissful weeks. I can't believe they're so far in the past now!

No longer a tiny new baby, we're now getting smiles and interaction, baby babbles, an adorable mohawk, double chins, chunky little legs, and a hint of a daily routine. (I am the least organised mother when it comes to routines! I'm still feeding on demand, letting her sleep whenever and wherever, and I spend my days walking around carrying her in the sling, doing whatever it takes to keep up with it all.) It's a bit tiring at times... but I know that another ten weeks will go by and I'll miss these wonderful days as well.

Anyway, I just wanted to share some photos of my sweet baby girl. Thank you for indulging me.:)

x Courtney

p.s. Marlow is lying on the adorable new Harlequin baby quiltfrom Olli Ella.

Category: Baby

COURTNEY IN LONDON | 22 COMMENTS