

SIMPLY FOR FLYING, A CHILDREN'S LOGBOOK

MARCH 18, 2013

My husband and I were laughing the other day about how when we were little, we hardly ever went anywhere on holiday that involved getting on an airplane. I think Disneyland was about as adventurous as we got when I was little (I still remember how excited I was to hop on that plane!).

How different it is for our children! In their short lives, they've been on so many flights it's not even exciting for them anymore. And because we fly home to the US each summer, they're not even phased by long-haul flights. The kids have flown so many times now that I can't even keep track... which is why I love the idea of this new flight logbook from Simply For Flying! It's a children's logbook, designed so that kids can record each flight they take by logging the flight journey, date, airline, aircraft type, distance flown, and flight time of each flight. There's also a notes section so they can write down observations about their trip, draw a special drawing, etc. How cool will it be for them to look back on this when they are older?! I wish we had discovered this sooner.

You can check out the Simply For Flying logbook here, and it is available to purchase online here.

x Courtney

Photos by Robin Keller Photography for Simply For Flying

Category: Books & Paper, For Kids

COURTNEY IN LONDON | 3 COMMENTS
