

KEEP THEM STILL

JULY 20, 2008

When stopping for lunch while traveling, we always aim for kid-friendly places with nice healthy menus, crayon box and highchairs. Unfortunately they're not always available, or those highchairs may already be taken. That's why we always take a chair harness with us.

I have the baboz - a cloth harness that fits on most chairs and secures your child during meals. It really takes up so little space that it could permanently reside in your pram bag.

Courtney and Esther have another version, either the totseat or the grogoup chair harness.

Another very portable option, not really pocket-sized but definitely more sturdy, is the Phil&Teds Mee Too chair that was already praised by Esther.

Now you can enjoy your meals while on holiday!

-Michela

Category: Baby, Equipment, For Kids, Theme weeks, Travel / On the go, Traveling with Kids

MICHELA | 1 COMMENT
