

AETHER CONE, A THINKING MUSIC PLAYER

APRIL 23, 2015

I'm sure every family is the same, but we love a bit of a swing in ours. Very often, after breakfast or dinner, we turn up the volume and dance in our living room. It's crazy! We all join in, and it's just so much fun. And very often, we end up with a big fat group hug in the end.

Also, sometimes when I've had a busy and difficult day, and I feel stressed and tired and my patience is low, it helps to get up and move, to be crazy, and sing along. Music surely is medication for the soul.

It has recently become much easier for our children to initiate their own dancing because the awesome Aether Cone entered our house. The Aether Cone is not only a striking music player (in fact the most beautiful looking one I've ever seen), it's also incredibly easy to understand and to work. Not only easy for me (too many buttons and screens put me off completely), but really handy for the kids as well! The only thing they need to do, is press the center button and ask out loud for any artist, song, or radio. Within seconds, the Cone will be playing their choice and our family will be in full swing!

And last weekend, my dad was here, and he just had the best of times with the Cone as well. He kept thinking of song and artists from his childhood (the early sixties), and voila - the Cone followed his commands without fail. Just to indicate how simple and fun it is to work with!

I've also understood that the more we use the Cone, the better it will get at playing the songs we love. I'm currently writing this with some lovely random background music in the background - I just took the Cone into my office (it's portable with an 8-hour rechargeable battery). On the associated app on my phone I read that right now I'm listening to Isobel Campbell, a Scottish singer-songwriter. Nice suggestion, I must say!

xxx Esther

PS This post is sponsored by Aether, a company we respect for making beautifully crafted products that use powerful technology and simple, natural controls to make everyday moments nicer.

Category: Home and Décor, Services

---

ESTHER IN AMSTERDAM | 1 COMMENT

---